BATMAN

This film I was watching together with my grandmother on TV1000. It's a film about jokers, bats, love, revenge, criminals and so on. The whole thing is starting in Gotham City, in a small alley.

Two bandits assault a family, take their money, kill the father, and run away. When they sit safe on top of a building, one of them starts to talk about a monster that looks like a bat. The other one doesn't believe him, but suddenly... a monster is behind them - Batman.

The police ~~doesn't~~<sup>don't</sup> know who Batman is yet, and they won't say anything to the press. A journalist wonders what Batman really is, and he's very engaged in the case. Suddenly, when he comes back to work, there's a female photographer waiting for him.

The journalist seems to like the woman, but she doesn't like him. When they go to a party, she meets a millionaire, and their love is growing. What she doesn't know, is that the millionaire and Batman are one and the same person. Suddenly the millionaire may go away to become Batman.

A big criminal, called Joker, (because of his look after a bath in acid) is played by Jack Nicholson. (currently my favorite actor) He wants to kill Batman because he dropped him in the acid, and because Batman is trying to stop the criminals. Batman wants to kill him, because Joker killed Batman's parents when he was a little boy. Batman is a creation of the millionaire, as a revenge to kill him who killed his parents.

A wild fight is going on, on the top of a cathedral. Joker is trying to escape, while Batman is about to fall down from the cathedral. A ladder of rope is hanging down from a helicopter. Joker is trying to climb up, but Batman fires a rope that ties Joker's leg and a statue of the cathedral together. Joker is losing his hold, and the statue is falling down. Joker falls to, and his life ends in the asphalt. Batman and the <sup>female</sup> photographer is hanging in the moonlight, kissing each other.

The mayor is <sup>making</sup> ~~holding~~ a speech, and Batman's sign lights up on the dark heaven.

I and my grandmother really enjoyed the movie, and I hope you did too (even if you haven't seen it yet.)
