ENGELSK SKOLESTIL FRIENDS

By: Stian Søiland

One of the most important things in our life, is friends. Someone to talk with, someone to share the same interests with. There are several ways to ^{make} (get) friends.

One way, is at ^{school} ~~school~~. There's plenty of people to choose ^{between} ~~in~~, but it can be hard talking with everyone of the students. Therefore, you stick to those in class, or those you already know. You can also be a part of a gang, but that may not be so positive to your health.

The negative thing about school friends, is that you mostly talk about school ^{subjects} ~~the stuffs~~, or the 10 minutes break ends.

Other ways to get friends, are through shared interests, like handball, computers (by modem), political parties, and soon.

The negative thing is also here that you most certainly only talk about that particular interest.

We do not forget those people you just can't miss: ^{relatives} related, neighbours and parents friends children. Often, you can get good friends here, because you don't have to talk ^{only} about school or only about football. But often, you talk about YOUR school, and your friends, so isn't there anything else to talk about?

This is when you need good friends, that you can talk about anything, like love, alcohol problems and even go out and have fun with!

How do you know if a friend is a good friend? Well, you don't. But you will feel it, (though) after some time.

If you're lucky one of your best friends may become your life-partner. That's one friend you surely shouldn't lose.

~~But, if you're~~

But, you lose a lot of other friends. He or she that once was your best friend, when you were 6 years old or so, is surely just a memory 10 years later. But some friends you keep, and they say that those good friends you have at college-age, are going to be your friends for a long time.

After all, you will also need friends when you're older.

You ask if young and old people can be friends. Of course they can, and most often, they can be good friends, too. But I doubt they would go out together. You will always have that difference in age, knowing that one of you die a long time before the other one. And one of you will have much more experience.

~~You also wonder~~
